In 2006, Dr. Gaylina Reachi purchased the practice of Dr. Mark Yarbrough after two years of planning. Both doctors are graduates of Baylor College of dentistry in Dallas, and share a philosophy of prevention, patient education and the highest quality dentistry to restore balanced systemic and dental health. Because Dr. Yarbrough enjoys the relationship he has with his patients, he has no immediate plans of retirement.

"Most people do not understand the science of dental health being connected to systemic health; we spend a tremendous amount of time educating patients that cavities are contagious and preventable and that gum disease can contribute to infertility, early term pregnancies, heart attack, stroke, and diabetes," Dr. Reachi explains.

Dr. Reachi is very community service oriented. She is an avid volunteer, donating dental services for underprivileged children and seniors. "Having been a homeless child myself, I feel blessed to be able to give to a community in need. My life goal is to volunteer on every continent—I'd better get busy!" laughs Dr Reachi.

Dr. Yarbrough has provided IV sedation for more than 30 years in New Mexico, serving highly anxious, medically compromised, and disabled patients. He is involved in many local and national organizations and is a highly respected member of our community.
